Record

Dear Mr. MacFarlane:

On February 7, 1985, I introduced in the House of Representatives H.R. 1082, the Omnibus Intelligence and Security Improvements Act. The bill is intended to improve significantly the ability of the United States Government to protect the security of this Nation. The bill would take a number of positive steps to improve our intelligence, counterintelligence and security capabilities. The bill also addresses some difficulties encountered in such matters in the past.

I would appreciate very much the benefit of your thoughts and ideas on this legislation and on other intelligence-related matters which you believe the Congress ought to consider in the current session. Only by forging an effective executive-legislative partnership will we be able to make legislative advances which will contribute to improved security for the Nation.

I am forwarding a copy of this letter and of H.R. 1082 to the heads of departments and agencies which may have an interest in the legislation. In addition to any informal comments you may have, I would appreciate greatly receiving the Administration's formal views on the various provisions in H.R. 1082.

Sincerely,

BOB STUMP
 Ranking Minority Member

OMNIBUS INTELLIGENCE AND SECURITY IMPROVEMENT ACT

SUMMARY

Title I--Recurring Intelligence Authorization Provision Codification Act

Title I of the bill codifies as permanent law a provision which has been included in past fiscal years in the intelligence authorization acts. The provision ensures notification to appropriate committees of Congress of expenditures by U.S. intelligence agencies in excess of program authorizations. Placing the provision permanently in the National Security Act of 1947 avoids the potential problem of lapse of the provision between the end of a fiscal year and the enactment of an intelligence authorization act for the following fiscal year.

Title II--Intelligence or Law Enforcement Defense Pretrial Notification Act

Title II of the bill amends the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure to require a defendant to give notice prior to trial if he intends to claim in his defense that he was, or believed he was, acting on behalf of a federal law enforcement or intelligence agency at the time of the alleged offense. In recent years, the number of cases in which defendants have falsely claimed at trial to have been working secretly for a U.S. intelligence or law enforcement agency has increased dramatically. Title II of the bill would eliminate the element of surprise and allow for a full and fair trial of such claims.

Title III--Foreign Counterintelligence Investigation Improvements Act

Title III of the bill will improve the ability of the United States to defend itself against espionage by the agents of hostile foreign powers. Title III amends the Right to Financial Privacy Act to improve Federal Bureau of Investigation access to bank records for counterintelligence investigations. Title III also amends the Internal Revenue Code to give the FBI access to the tax return and return information of agents of foreign powers. Finally, Title III amends the State Department Basic Authorities Act to ensure that travel within the United States by foreign diplomatic personnel to high technology areas is clearly consistent with U.S. national security.

Title IV--Federal Employee Unauthorized Disclosure of Classified Information Act

Title IV of the bill amends title 18 of the United States Code to establish as a federal crime the intentional unauthorized disclosure of classified information by a federal employee. Currently, such disclosures are per se criminal offenses only if the classified information concerns communications intelligence and cryptographic information, the identities of covert U.S. intelligence agents, or atomic energy restricted data. Title IV will establish criminal penalties for unauthorized disclosure of the other types of information whose disclosure can reasonably be expected to cause damage to the national security. By virtue of Title IV, disclosure of U.S. national security secrets by U.S. personnel, who have voluntarily assumed positions of high national trust, would be subject to criminal penalties.

Title V--Federal Polygraph and Prepublication Review Limitation Act

Title V of the bill would regulate the use of polygraph examinations and prepublication review requirements by the United States government with respect to federal employees. The legislation restricts substantially the use of these security techniques, while carefully preserving their use in sensitive intelligence, security and special access programs and, in certain circumstances, in law enforcement investigations.

Title VI--Espionage and Treason Capital Punishment Procedures Act

Title VI of the bill amends title 18 of the United States Code to establish constitutional procedures to implement the existing death penalty provisions of statutes punishing espionage and treason. In 1972, the Supreme Court struck down the application of the death penalty because of the way in which it was applied. Title VI of the bill will provide constitutional procedures to permit imposition of the death sentence in appropriate cases for espionage and treason.

Title VI provides for a separate sentencing hearing, after conviction for espionage or treason, to determine whether to impose a sentence of death. The jury, or, if the defendant and the government so agree, the judge, will consider a number of mitigating and aggravating factors to determine whether, in the particular facts and circumstances of the case, the death sentence is warranted. Title VI also provides expedited procedures for appellate court review of a sentence of death.

Title VII--Foreign Intelligence Source Improvement Act

Title VII of the bill amends the Central Intelligence Agency Act of 1949 to permit the President to naturalize a maximum of five persons per year admitted to the United States for permanent residence under the existing provisions of the CIA Act because of their critical contributions to the security of the United States. Title VII would enable the United States to use the potential for U.S. citizenship as a strong inducement to highly-placed individuals in hostile foreign countries to become U.S. intelligence sources.

Title VIII--Intelligence Identities Protection-Related Amendments

Title VIII of the bill amends the existing provision of title 5 of the United States Code which terminates the federal annuity benefits of a federal employee convicted of certain national security crimes. Title VIII would include offenses under section 601 of the National Security Act of 1947, which prohibits disclosure of the identities of covert U.S. intelligence agents, among those annuity-disqualifying crimes.

Title VIII also amends chapter 119 of title 18 of the United States Code, which, among other things, provides for court orders for interception of wire and oral communications in investigations of certain national security crimes. Title VII would include offenses under section 601 of the National Security Act of 1947, which prohibits disclosure of the identities of covert U.S. intelligence agents, among those crimes for which such interception orders could be obtained.

Title IX--Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Amendments

Title IX amends the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (FISA) to extend from twenty-four hours to forty-eight hours the period during which emergency foreign intelligence electronic surveillances may be conducted on the authority of the Attorney General. Title IX also amends the FISA to permit retention and dissemination of communications constituting threats of death or serious bodily harm incidentally overheard while conducting electronic testing, training or security countermeasures in accordance with the FISA. Finally, Title IX clarifies the relationship between the authority of the government to conduct law enforcement surveillances under chapter 119 of title 18 of the United States Code and its authority to conduct foreign intelligence electronic surveillances under the FISA, by making clear that the government may proceed under either authority when both apply.

Title X--Congressional Security Survey Act

Title X provides for a comprehensive survey of the personnel, physical, document and communications security programs relating to classified information possessed by the legislative branch. Title IX requires the Director of the FBI to conduct the survey under the guidance of congressional leadership and to report to the leadership by January 3, 1986 with recommendations for improvement of the security of classified information in the legislative branch.

TITLE VI

SEC. 601. This title may be cited as the "Espionage and Treason Capital Punishment Procedures Act".

SEC. 602. (a) Title 18, United States Code is amended by adding the following new chapter after chapter 228:

"CHAPTER 228A -- ESPIONAGE AND TREASON CAPITAL PUNISHMENT PROCEDURES

"SEC.

"3591A. Definition.

"3592A. Sentence of death for espionage or treason.

"3593A. Mitigating and aggravating factors.

"3594A. Procedures for separate sentencing hearing.

"3595A. Imposition of a sentence of death.

"3596A. Review of a sentence of death.

"§3591A. Definition

"For purposes of this chapter, the term 'finder of fact' means the jury, or if there is no jury, the court.

"§3592A. Sentence of death for espionage or treason

"A defendant who has been found guilty of an offense described in section 794 or section 2381 of this title shall be sentenced to death if, after consideration of the factors set forth in section 3593A in the course of a hearing held pursuant to section 3594A, it is determined that imposition of a sentence of death is justified.

"§3593A. Mitigating and aggravating factors

"(a) In determining whether a sentence of death is justified for an offense described in section 3592A, the finder of fact shall consider each of the following mitigating factors and determine which, if any, exist --

"(1) the defendant was less than eighteen years of age at the time of the offense;

"(2) the defendant's mental capacity was significantly impaired, although the impairment was not such as to constitute a defense to prosecution;

"(3) the defendant was under unusual and substantial duress, although not such duress as would constitute a defense to prosecution; and

"(4) the defendant was an accomplice whose participation in the offense was relatively minor.

The finder of fact may consider whether any other mitigating factor exists.

"(b) In determining whether a sentence of death is justified for an offense described in section 3592A, the finder of fact shall consider each of the following aggravating factors and determine which, if any, exist --

"(1) the offense committed by the defendant directly concerned nuclear weaponry; military or intelligence spacecraft or satellites; means of defense or retaliation against large-scale attack; military operational plans; or communications intelligence or cryptographic information;

"(2) in the commission of the offense the defendant knowingly created a grave risk of substantial danger to the national security; and

"(3) in the commission of the offense the defendant knowingly created a grave risk of death to another person.

The finder of fact may consider whether any other aggravating factor exists.

"§3594A. Procedures for separate sentencing hearing

"(a) If, in a case involving an offense described in section 3592A, the government believes that the circumstances of the offense justify a sentence of death, the attorney for the government shall, at a reasonable time before the trial, or before acceptance by the court of a plea of guilty, or at such time thereafter as the court may permit upon a showing of good cause, file with the court and serve on the defendant a notice stating that the government believes that the circumstances of the offense justify a sentence of death if the defendant is found guilty. The court may permit the attorney for the government to amend the notice upon a showing of good cause.

"(b) If the attorney for the government has filed a notice as required under subsection (a) of this section and the defendant is found guilty of an offense described in section 3592A, the judge who presided at the trial or before whom the guilty plea was entered, or another judge if that judge is unavailable, shall conduct a separate sentencing hearing to determine the punishment to be imposed.

"(c) The separate sentencing hearing required by subsection (b) of this section shall be conducted before the jury which determined the defendant's guilt, except that the hearing shall be conducted before a jury specially impaneled for the purpose of the hearing if the defendant was convicted upon a plea of guilty or after a trial before the court sitting without a jury, or if, after initial imposition of a sentence under this chapter, reconsideration of the sentence under this chapter becomes necessary.

"(d) Notwithstanding subsection (c) of this section, the separate sentencing hearing required by subsection (b) of this section shall be conducted before the court alone, upon motion of the defendant with the approval of the attorney for the government.

"(e) At the separate sentencing hearing required by subsection (b) of this section, information may be presented as to any matter relevant to the sentence, including any mitigating or aggravating factor required or permitted to be considered under section 3593A, and may include the trial transcript and exhibits. Information relevant to the sentence may be presented by both the government and the defendant regardless of its admissibility under the rules governing admission of evidence at criminal trials, except that the court may exclude information if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice. The burden of establishing the existence of any aggravating factor is on the government, and is not satisfied unless the existence of such a factor is established beyond a reasonable doubt. The burden of establishing the existence of any mitigating factor is on the defendant, and is not satisfied unless the existence of such a factor is established by a preponderance of the information presented.

"(f) At the conclusion of the separate sentencing hearing required by subsection (b) of this section, the finder of fact shall return a special finding as to each mitigating and aggravating factor required to be considered under section 3593A, concerning which information is presented at the hearing. If the finder of fact is a jury, it must find the existence of any mitigating or aggravating factor or factors by a unanimous vote. It shall be necessary to the imposition of a sentence of death that the finder of fact find that at least one aggravating factor required to be considered under section 3593A(b) exists.

"(g) If the finder of fact finds, at the conclusion of the separate sentencing hearing required under subsection (b) of this section, that at least one aggravating factor required to be considered under section 3593A(b) exists, the finder of fact shall then consider whether the aggravating factor or factors found to exist sufficiently outweigh the mitigating factor or factors, if any, found to exist to justify a sentence of death, or, in the absence of any mitigating factor, whether the aggravating factor or factors alone suffice to justify a sentence of death. Based upon this consideration, the jury by unanimous vote, or if there is no jury, the court, shall return a finding as to whether a sentence of death is justified.

"(h) In the case of a separate sentencing hearing required under subsection (b) of this section which is held before a jury, the court shall instruct the jury that, in considering whether a sentence of death is justified, it shall not consider the race, color, national origin, creed, or gender of the defendant. The jury shall, in addition to returning findings as required by this section, return to the court sworn certificates of each of the jurors that consideration of the race, color, national origin, creed, or gender of the defendant was not involved in reaching juror's individual decision with respect to the findings returned.

"§3595A. Imposition of a sentence of death

"Upon a return of a finding under section 3594A(g) that a sentence of death is justified, the court shall sentence the defendant to death. In the absence of such a finding, the court shall impose any sentence other than death that is authorized by law, and, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the court may impose a sentence of life imprisonment without parole.

"§3596A. Review of a sentence of death

"(a) In a case in which a sentence of death is imposed, the sentence shall be subject to review by the court of appeals upon appeal by the defendant. An appeal under this section of the sentence of death may be consolidated with an appeal of the judgment of conviction and shall have priority over all other cases.

"(b) In proceeding upon an appeal under subsection (a) of this section of a sentence of death, the court of appeals shall review the entire record in the case, including the information presented during the sentencing hearing, the procedures employed in the sentencing hearing, and the findings returned under section 3594A.

"(c) (1) In proceeding upon an appeal under subsection (a) of this section of a sentence of death, if the court of appeals determines that --

"(A) the sentence of death was not imposed arbitrarily; and

"(B) the information presented at the separate sentencing hearing required by section 3594A(b) supports the special finding of the existence of an aggravating factor required to be considered under section 3593A(b); it shall affirm the sentence, and in any other case the court of appeals shall vacate the sentence of death and remand the case for reconsideration of sentencing.

"(2) The court of appeals shall state in writing the reasons for its disposition of an appeal of a sentence of death under this section."

(b) Title 18, United States Code is amended by adding the following new item after the item relating to chapter 228 in the chapter analysis of part II:

"228A. Espionage and Treason Capital Punishment Procedures.....3591A."
